

DIRECTOR'S REPORT

The Culinary Cupboard alternative collection is officially available for check out. Several items are already checked out. The cake pan collection debuted at the end of December and has been quite popular. Soon, a sewing machine will be available for patrons to check out. All these items, although not traditional in the Library sense, support the growing trend in libraries to encourage and promote the maker movement. It's all very exciting to see new and innovative items and ideas coming from the public library! Libraries have always been places for discovery. This is just the next phase in our long history of being that place in the community where residents can connect, create and explore.

We're gearing up for our 100 year anniversary. Plans are underway for the Sunday morning pancake party. Festivities include: gourmet pancakes, musical performances, and a photo booth where patrons can have their picture taken in front of a yester-year façade. We'll also have cupcakes in the lobby on Tuesday, March 22, which is the actual day the Library officially opened back in 1916.

This article appears in the March print edition alongside the cover story, “Can America Put Itself Back Together?”—a summation of James and Deb Fallows’s 54,000-mile journey around America in a single-engine plane. More dispatches from their ongoing reporting trip can be found here.

AS WE TRAVELED around the U.S. reporting on the revival of towns and cities, we always made the local library an early stop. We’d hit the newspaper offices, the chamber of commerce, city hall, and Main Street for an introduction to the economics, politics, and stresses of a town. The visit to the public library revealed its heart and soul.

The traditional impression of libraries as places for quiet reading, research, and borrowing books—and of librarians as schoolmarmish shush-ers—is outdated, as they have metamorphosed into bustling civic centers. For instance, Deschutes Public Library in Bend, Oregon, now cooperates with dozens of organizations, from AARP (which helps people with their taxes) to Goodwill (which teaches résumé writing). A social worker trains staff to guide conversations about one of the most frequent questions people trustingly bring into the library: Can you help me figure out how to meet my housing costs?

There are three areas where libraries function as vibrant centers of America’s towns: technology, education, and community.

Chelsea Beck

Technology

Many people rely on libraries for their computer and Internet use. According to a 2015 Pew Research Center report, more than a quarter of Americans who had visited a public library in the past year had used a computer, the Internet, or a WiFi connection there, with the usage numbers higher among minorities and low-income groups.

More ambitiously, libraries have also begun offering “makerspaces”—shared workspaces that provide technological tools and are designed to facilitate collaborative work. I recently toured the makerspace at Washington, D.C.’s flagship Martin Luther King Jr. library. An eclectic group of hobbyists, entrepreneurs, and a mom with her homeschooled preteens were learning about tools like 3-D printers, laser cutters, and wire benders. Ben Franklin, who conducted some of his experiments with electricity in the public spaces of the Library Company of Philadelphia, would surely appreciate today’s public-library makerspaces.

Miguel Figueroa, who directs the Center for the Future of Libraries at the American Library Association, says makerspaces are part of libraries' expanded mission to be places where people can not only consume knowledge, but create new knowledge.

Education

In my conversations with librarians around the country, the most urgent topic was the education of America's youngest children. Patrick Losinski, the CEO of the Columbus, Ohio, metropolitan library system, told me that when a 5-year-old walks into kindergarten, takes a book, and holds it upside down, "you know there is no reading readiness there." I heard of many projects like Books for Babies, which is run by Friends of the Library in tiny Winters, California: Volunteers scour birth announcements and go stroller-spotting, offering each new baby a box with a T-shirt, a cap, two books, and an application to join the library.

In Charleston, West Virginia, despite recent funding losses that severely cut library staff, librarians still provide materials to teachers all across the 900-square-mile county. In Columbus, Mississippi, the library gives high-school students access to Civil War-era archives—slave sale records, court cases, and secrets of the community—making real the racial history of their state. In Redlands, California, the program attracting the most volunteers is one-on-one literacy tutorials for adults. And many adults use public libraries as their access point to postsecondary online courses.

Community

The library in West Hartford, Connecticut, offers conversational-English classes for immigrants. The library in Seattle provides citizenship classes. The library in Duluth, Minnesota, has a seed-lending program for local gardeners. The library in Washington, D.C., offers tango dancing on Saturday afternoons. In libraries, I have practiced yoga and tai chi, sipped lattes in coffee shops, and watched Millennials with laptops arrange their virtual start-up offices at long reading-room tables. Libraries serve as anchors in times of distress: The library in Ferguson, Missouri, kept its doors open even when schools were closed, and libraries in New Jersey became places of refuge after Hurricane Sandy.

If these seem like deviations from libraries' historical role as lenders of books, consider that, around the start of the 20th century, the earliest Carnegie libraries included bowling alleys, music halls, billiard tables, swimming pools, and gymnasiums.

KIDS' LIBRARY

January 2016

PROGRAMS

Chicka Chicka Baby (infants):	9 sessions; 96 babies, 113 adults
Winter Spree (ages 1-5):	15 sessions; 461 children, 387 adults
Rhyme Time (ages 1-2):	7 sessions; 127 children, 133 adults
Cursive Writing:	4 sessions; 49 children
Pajama Storytime (families):	4 sessions; 34 children, 21 adults
Saturday Family Storytime:	5 sessions; 74 children, 64 adults
Spanish Storytime:	1 session; 36 children; 30 adults
Open LEGO:	1 session; 40 builders
Minecraft:	1 session; 13 players

We started the year with a Thank You Card program on January 2, which drew 20 grateful kids. Science Clubs this month focused on crystals. Eighteen K-2 students attended on January 14, and twenty 3rd – 5th graders attended on January 15. The popular Make a Movie program returned, and drew 46 kids over four weeks. Nineteen readers joined us for Read to the Dogs this month, spending time with comfort dogs.

On Martin Luther King Jr. Day, artist Sarah Johnson led an interactive art program based on the life and work of Horace Pippin, and 50 kids enjoyed creating art. Five intrepid readers joined us for the Family Read-a-thon on January 23. Due to popular demand we added an Agar.io program to the calendar on January 25, which was attended by 12 “frenzied” players.

MIDDLE SCHOOL PROGRAMS

Cutthroat Kitchen:	1 session; 9 kids
Perler Bead Crafting:	1 session; 6 kids

SCHOOL SERVICES

Thirty-eight classroom collections totaling 535 items circulated to thirteen schools.

Lori Hoegler, our new School Services Librarian, and Shaira Rock, our new Middle School Services Librarian, presented at Churchville Career Day on January 15, to a class of 30 students. Lori also attended the District 205 PTA Summer Recreation Open House on January 23. She brought newsletters, puppets, a summer reading flyer, and other information about the Library. Approximately 1500 parents and children attended, and Lori spent most of the time talking to parents and children, including many people new to the area who were unaware of the resources and programs the Library has to offer. It was a great outreach experience.

On January 24, Shaira showed ten 2nd grade Girl Scout Brownies and ten adults how the 3D printers works. She also assisted in teaching the scouts and their parents how to use Tinkercad, a 3D printer software, and how to submit their creation to be printed.

Sharon Karpriel attended the Rebecca Caudill annual selection meeting on Saturday, January 30. The committee of 70 members, from all around the state, spent the day discussing fifty books that were considered for placement on the final list of 20 nominees for the Rebecca Caudill Award, 2017. They then chose the reading list for Illinois students to vote from next year. (7)

Shaira Rock scheduled a meeting with Cathy Baker, District 205 Instructional Technology Coordinator, to discuss current and future use of technology in the schools, and how EPL might coordinate. Many ideas were discussed and questions asked, so it was decided that future meetings would be scheduled. (2)
